The Criminal Blunder of a United States Marshal.

St. Louis, June 4.—The following story comes from the Indian Territory: A terrible piece of criminal recklessness on the part of a United States Marshal, which resulted in the killing of three children, has just come to light. Some three weeks since Deputy Marshal Mereson, with a posse was looking for a couple of Indian murderers in the Chickasaw Nation, near Red river. They were supposed to be at a certain house, and just before daylight the officers surrounded the place. The woman of the house, with two of her children, aged twelve and sixteen, were sleeping out under the trees, owing to the heat, and the third child, nine years old, was sleeping in the house. The marshal, on riding up, woke them, and they, supposing that some drunken Indians were carousing near, ran for the house to barricade the door. The marshal, without waiting for a closer investigation, to see whether they were the parties wanted, opened fire, killing both of the boys and wounding the woman. They then rushed into the house, and seeing the other boy lying there in the dim light, shot and killed him. On discovering their mistake they left there and reported that they had killed three desperadoes, but the facts have just come out. The Chickasaws are greatly excited over it, and are determined to sift the matter to the bottom.

Tewkesbury Not Altogether Lovely in the Past.

Boston, Mass., June 4.—The Tewkesbury investigation has been made interesting by the appearance of ex-Governor Alex. H. Rice on the witness stand, who testified that during his administration in 1876 he visited Tewkesbury in consequence of rumors regarding the bad condition of affairs there, and found the institution in excellent condition. Governor Butler, in his cross-examination of his predecessor, elicited the facts that the rumors referred to were definite and horrible charges against the management preferred by the Board of State Charities in a report to Governor Rice. Governor Rice testified that on his visit to Tewkesbury he examined into none of these charges.

This provision applies only to matter which does not bear the card or address of the sender; such card matter should be returned immediately to the party mailing it. This order will take effect July 1, 1883.

Conkling in a Western Court.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 4.—Judges Miller, McCreary and Krekos held United States Court in the Board of Trade Hall in order to accommodate those wishing to hear Mr. Conkling. The case is one agreed upon for the purpose of testing the constitutionality of the act of the last Legislature prohibiting the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine, even when properly labelled. Mr. Conkling's speech was not finished when court adjourned. The law holds that oleomargarine is deleterious to the public health.

A Murderess' Light Sentence.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Catharine Burdison has been sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment for the killing of little Maggie Curlett by shooting her last January. The prisoner had been annoyed by the children in the neighborhood, and on the day of the murder she fired into a crowd of little ones who were on the pavement in front of her residence. The mitigating circumstances were undue excitement caused by nervous prostration. It is believed she will not live to serve the sentence.
